

Overview

Laws and administrative rules give the government the authority to regulate manufacturing activities. Laws are public acts or statutes that are created by a legislative body such as Indiana's State Legislature or U.S. Congress. An administrative rule is a regulation written by an agency that implements or applies a law. Laws and rules are created and administered at both the state and federal level.

Throughout this guide a number of laws and rules are cited. Several resources exist to help you understand what these citations mean and increase your understanding of how laws and rules are published and cited, as well as where they can be found using the Internet.

Please refer to www.idem.IN.gov/4087.htm for more information on Indiana environmental laws and rules.

The table on pages 240-245 lists the state environmental statutes administered by IDEM's Office of Air Quality, Office of Water Quality, Office of Land Quality, Office of Pollution Prevention and Technical Assistance, and Offices of Enforcement, Legal Council and Criminal Investigations, with their corresponding administrative rules.
